Council Reconsiders Youth Board, Hears Capital Improvement Budgets

by Mary Lou Williamson

The Teen Club Board failed in the 60's. An attempt to begin again in 1973 also failed when only one person showed up to be appointed. Last fall Jeff Keir challenged the city council to try again.

"There's not enough recognition to youth," said Council member Joseph Isaacs at council's September 17 meeting. "I'm prepared to support another attempt. The issues are there. I'm not sure about the interest."

"Youth need a focal point. . . I'm hoping it works," agreed Councilmember Edward Putens. "I'm not sure what the goal is." "It's an idea whose time has come or just about or not quite there yet," offered Councilmember Antoinette M. Bram, noting a bulge in the population at ages 11 to 13.

Plan for Board

Keir had recommended forming a group of five adults and two youths who would look at issues facing youth today—teenage pregnancy, drugs, violence, child abuse, recreation, after-school care. The board could also act as advocate on issues within the city which affect young people—such as the development of Schrom Hills Park, Greenbelt CARES and the DARE program.

Council next referred the proposal to two advisory boards for comment. The Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) in its report recommended using the city's 1973 ordinance, still in effect, for a Youth Advisory Board. Its purpose would be to provide a "youth perspective on matters affecting youth and their families . . . and thereby contribute to the city's policy-making and administrative processes." The group should select its own areas of concern in addition to responding to council's referrals, according to the report.

The Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB), in a June 1990 report to council, recommended limiting board membership to teens and renaming it the Teen Advisory Board. They strongly recommended establishing such a board only if teens in the community established the goals and provided the impetus for such an undertaking.

Charlie Reuter, of Canning Terrace and a student at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS), told council he is enthusiastically interested in participating in the project, would serve on the board if appointed, and would bring many others with him. He preferred the board to encompass all youth and not just teens.

Pat Molden, parent and recreation activist and president of the ERHS PTSA, also supported the idea. She recommended to council to get the word out to youth in places where they would notice and there would be a good response.

Tom Renehan, chair of PRAB, rejected a proposal that a youth board could be a subcommittee of PRAB. He did not see their major focus to be recreation.

CRAB and PRAB both noted that no one is coordinating information about youth programs and services, a task that needs to be done.

Council directed staff to revise the old ordinance and bring it back for consideration. The vote was unanimous.

Matching Funds

For Deferred Compensation

Council tabled, at City Manager James K. Giese's recommendation, consideration of which groups of city employees might receive matching funds in a deferred compensation plan. He is further recommending that matching funds be added to the planned cafeteria package of benefits which is expected to be ready by January.

Councilmember Thomas X. White objected to the move. He later told the News Review that he believes the matching funds program is inappropriate for a cafeteria-style plan where employees are picking health and dental benefits. He expressed concern for those employees who had expected the program to be put in place now and were planning to use it.

Employees under the pension plan (least costly for the city and offering less benefits to the employee) have been receiving matching funds, up to five percent of salary, for deferred compensation. Employees under the older retirement plan and law enforcement officers under their new 25-year pension plan have

Gas Distribution Affected By Price Discrimination

An investigation of gasoline price increases, prompted by distributors after the August 2 invasion of Kuwait, revealed that major oil companies increased prices to distributors by 25 percent, nearly twice the increase to dealer-supplied retail service stations, according to Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. Fifty percent of Maryland retail service stations are affected by the discriminatory pricing which could result in a gasoline market disruption, he said in his report to Governor William Schaeffer.

Major oil companies argue that they are adhering to President Bush's request to hold down gas prices by offering low prices for direct sale to retail stations. Goldstein says the upward trend of gas prices appears to be continuing, however.

"Should the discriminatory pricing policy drive distributors out of business, consumers face a loss of competition, a loss of service stations and most certainly a further escalation of prices," Goldstein said.

not been able to participate. Their plans are more costly to the city and their benefits are higher. Two ordinances had been drafted which would either add just the police or all employees to the match program. Giese was concerned that offering either option further aggravated the already unequal treatment of employees under the pension plan. The majority of council agreed. The vote was 4 to 1, White voting no.

Sunrise Developers Appeal Stopwork

The Board of Appeals for Prince Georges County, sitting as the Board of Administrative Appeals, will consider an appeal filed by the Sunrise Apartment developers dealing with a "Stop Work Order" issued in May by the county Department of Environmental Resources. The hearing will be held on Tuesday, October 30 in the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro.

At the time the "Stop Work Order" was issued, the Sectional Map Amendment (SMA) for the Langley Park-College Park Greenbelt Master Plan was adopted by the County Council, sitting as the District Council (May 1). The SMA had down-zoned the 10 acre Sunrise tract in Greenbelt East from the R-10 high rise apartment category (maximum 48 units an acre) to the R-18-C condominium apartment zone (maximum 20 units an acre).

At issue was whether the developer had performed enough work on the 476-unit apartment complex prior to the SMAs adoption to proceed with the project.

The developers maintained that they should be able to move ahead in the R-10 zone. They noted that a permit was obtained in December 1989 and footings were poured.

After reviewing the matter, County Attorney Michael Whalen said that the two footings poured in December 1989 were "insufficient" support for construction of that size.

In his letter to the city, County Executive Parris Glendening stated that "neither I nor the County Attorney share" the opinion of the developer (Sunrise Properties) that "it has acquired sufficient vested rights in the earlier issued building permit to allow it to develop the property in accordance with that which is permissible under the R-10 zone."

Co-op Gasoline Station To Start Pumping Again

by Joe Timer

The renovations at the Co-op service station are finally nearing completion and staff are planning to restart the gasoline business. "Barring any unforeseen problems, Co-op will be selling gas on Friday, September 28," stated Manager Dave Meadows. "The County has basically completed its inspections. Tentatively, tank-testing is scheduled for Tuesday and tank-filling on Wednesday or Thursday." Meadows added, "My main concern is re-establishing that business that we lost as of April 25 when we closed for tank testing."

Director Tom Lammons commented that Co-op's service salesman and the three mechanics have continued to service vehicles during the five month ordeal. "But we need gas sales to help cover the fixed costs of operating this facility," stated Lammons. "With this approximately $100,000 investment, the station will comply with all existing and proposed regulations through 1998 —unless EPA or the State modifies those requirements," said Lammons.

The three new 10,000 gallon tanks have sophisticated leak-detection systems plus an electrical system designed to prevent rusting of the lines. For emergencies, a new cut-off switch has been installed near the cashier's window. New break-away nozzles will minimize damage if a customer carelessly drives away with a nozzle still in the car's fill.

Manager Meadows is planning a grand re-opening celebration to thank all those patrons who have waited patiently since April. "Stay tuned for all the details! Right now, my focus is communicating the competitive prices and convenience available at Co-op," remarked Meadows.

RABIES SHOTS AVAILABLE OCT. 6

Cats and dogs over three months of age can be vaccinated for rabies on Saturday, October 6 from 2 to 4 p.m., at the Greenbelt Middle School, Edmonston Road at Greenbelt Road.

Pet owners are reminded that 31 cases of rabies have been confirmed in this county among raccoons, skunks and foxes. Vaccination of domestic pets is vital to stem the spread of this potentially fatal disease in animals and humans.

All animals brought to the clinic must be on a leash (dogs) or in a carrier or box (cats and others) and must be accompanied by an adult. A $4 fee per animal is charged to offset costs. For more information, call 386-0113.

Anyone suspecting that a pet may have been bitten or scratched by a wild animal exhibiting unusual behavior (acting sick or excessively friendly for a wild animal) should immediately notify the County Health Department's Disease Control Division at 386-0110 (8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday) or 386-9735 (weekends and evenings). Dead animals spotted anywhere should be reported to the city or county, as these animals might have been infected.

Use Area Code!

Beginning Monday, October 1 all metro area residents will have to use area codes when dialing telephone calls to Washington, D.C.—202 area code and Northern Virginia — 703 area code. Calls will be charged as local calls.

Cards and Letters Wanted

To the Editor:

PFC Andrew Cooley of the Army's 82nd Airborne is presently serving in Saudi Arabia. Many of you may know Andrew from St. Hugh's School, as an altar boy and Rectory phone boy. Many may remember him from Boys and Girls Club Soccer teams, CYO teams or Boy Scouts. Andrew was born there and thinks of Greenbelt as home.

Andrew has given us some bulletins about the terrible heat and isolation of his position. He has been begging us to write both to himself and his platoon. The 38 men share mail regularly. We are in turn asking Andrew's friends and ours to take the time to drop him a note or a card. Those of you who know him or those who understand the loneliness of a young man far from home will surely respond to this need. For this generosity we thank you in advance.

Please drop the mail off at 232 Lastner Lane and we'll send it along.

Metro Needs to Purchase Nearby Replacement Land

If it is considered necessary to construct a Metro train storage yard on Beltsville Agricultural Research Center land, I believe that undeveloped private land should be purchased as replacement. There are very good reasons why the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority should acquire a portion of the A. H. Smith property as replacement open space.

Indian Creek flows past the Metro station/train yard and continues through the Smith property, where at Greenbelt Road, the bicycle path follows Indian Creek through College Park and Riverdale to Bladensburg. Extending this bicycle path through a restored Indian Creek to the future Metro station would enhance Metro travel and add tremendously to the quality of life in the area.

Since construction of the Metro station/train yard is resulting in the loss of wetlands and woodlands, the water quality of Indian Creek, the Anacostia River and ultimately the Chesapeake Bay is being adversely affected. Restoration and creation of wetlands on the Smith property which is located immediately down stream from the future Metro station, would act as a filter to capture sediment and impurities from the Metro station/train yard. Bill Schultz, a biologist from the Fish and Wildlife service, stated at the city council meeting on December 18, 1989, that "the best location for a wetlands mitigation site is the Smith property." Other environmentalists have confirmed this opinion.

The County Council recently zoned the Smith property for high density development — as much as twice the size of Capital Office Park, according to Joe Chang, county planner. The proposal for replacement open space would assure that a portion of land near the future Metro would be reserved in its natural state for the pleasure of nearby residents.

A river park and restored wetlands site could be in harmony with development proposals for the property. Therefore, cooperation with the land owner is possible.

The most important benefit of the replacement idea is that it would not delay completion of the Green Line.

I believe that this proposal is responsible, and is consistent with the goals of completing Metro, restoring the Anacostia River and preserving woodlands while stimulating economic development near the future Greenbelt Metro station. Congressman Hoyer, Councilman Castaldi and County Executive Glendening, who have worked hard for the completion of Metro and economic development, need widespread support for such a plan to become reality.

Josephine Scheibel

Josephine Jane Scheibel died Thursday, September 20. Born in Pittsburgh in 1937, Jo entered art school at age 7. In high school she studied fashion illustration, then received a scholarship to attend the Art Institute of Pittsburgh from 1956 to 1958.

In 1956 Jo married Merle E. Scheibel. Together they raised three children—Gregg, Kim and Lorie. On Labor Day 1961 the family moved to Greenbelt. During those years Jo joined the Woman's Club and supported her children in their activities: Gregg in sports and the girls in cheerleading and majorettes. She also gave art lessons to Greenbelt children in her home, then at the Youth Center and the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, and much later she taught art to seniors at Green Ridge House.

At the same time, she continued her own art endeavors. She was president of the Greenbelt Art Guild from 1967 to 1969, coordinated and participated in the Labor Day Festival Art Shows and brought in the Washington Post art critic as judge. She received commissions for commercial art from companies and from a major airline for fine art. She sold and gave away her art as gifts to friends, family, members of the community and others around the country.

When her children went to college, at their urging and with their financial support she joined them as a full-time student, completing the formal education she had postponed to raise a family. The children remember those days with their mother "the perfect college roommate." At Maryland she became a teaching assistant while studying under artist Jack Dillinger, graduating cum laude in 1982 with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.

After graduation she again needed to support her art by working full-time for the Veterans Administration as a personnel specialist. She exhibited her paintings, taking prizes at the University and at other galleries and shows involving artists from Greenbelt, Washington and Laurel. This August, two of her works were selected for a juried show at Harmony House Gallery with Professional Artists of Greenbelt and the Southern Maryland Art League.

Jo enjoyed supporting her favorite politicians and served as a member of the city's Community Relations Advisory Board. A member of the Wallace Memorial Presbyterian Church, she supported a Young Life group which met in her home.

Her children are planning a retrospective art show in her memory. (See separate article).

In addition to her three children, Jo is survived by her mother, Carmella Pilotta; a sister, Mary Seamen and three brothers, Louis P., Vincent and Michael Pilotta; and four grandchildren. Expressions of sympathy may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Explorer Club Recruiting

The Goddard Explorer Club (Division of the Boy Scouts of America for men and women ages 14-20) will hold its recruiting firstnighter on Wednesday, October 3, at 8 p.m. The club (Post 1275) meets at the Space Flight Center. Advisor John Wolfgang (phone: 286-2219) notes that the Post specializes in high-tech science, engineering, computers, photography and astronomy. The first 50 students will be accepted as members.

Help Sought with Scheibel

Family members and friends of Jo Scheibel plan to compile information to document her lifetime of art work and to hold a retrospective art show in her memory.

Those who own—or who know of others who own—her art works are asked to contact Kim McCarl by October 14 by calling 474-5182 or by sending information to her at 6 Pinecrest Court.

"Works will be borrowed for documentation and/or exhibition. A show catalogue will also include personal interviews and will serve to help those who knew and loved my mother to understand the artist and her work," comments McCarl.

CHOIR PRACTICE BEGINS

The Greenbelt Combined Choir will begin rehearsals for their holiday performances on Thursday, October 4 at 7:30 p.m. Rehearsals are held in the Greenbelt Community Church at Crescent and Hillside Roads. All singers are welcome to join. There are no auditions, a desire to sing being the main requirement.

The Choir sings for the Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service, does a Christmas Concert at the Greenbelt Community Church, another at Green Ridge House, and is part of the Christmas Pageant of Peace on the Ellipse. For further information call Jean Cook, 345-2597.

COUNCIL MEETING

Fund II, which originated with the 1987 $6,000,000 bond issue, will provide $3,510,000 to complete the indoor pool, the final project in this fund.

C.I. Fund III contains funds from the $1,000,000 bond issue approved by voters in 1989 to develop Schrom Hills Park in Greenbelt East. This year $1,213,500 is budgeted in this account for planning, design and construction. Other revenues come from state open space grants, $165,600; interest on investments, $53,000; and transfer from capital projects fund, $129,400.

C.I. Fund IV, a new fund, will be established for the $3,000,000 bond issue approved by voters also in 1989 for financing the cost of renovating Center School as a community center. Expenditures budgeted for this year are $280,000. While the bonds have not yet been sold, other monies have been acquired by the fund: a special state grant of $150,000 and a transfer from the Capital Projects Fund of $230,000 (originally contributed by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission). Several state grants are anticipated for the next fiscal year to help create the appropriate spaces for Adult Day Care and an Adult Activities Center; also funds set aside for development of a community center at North End School. The bulk of the funds are anticipated to be spent during 1991-92, following completion of a new school at the North End site.

The Capital Projects Fund is used for capital projects using a portion of the tax rate each year. Projects for the coming year range from street resurfacing to replacing a gym floor, from a new women's locker room for the Youth Center to acquisition of the Steiner property as part of Schrom Hills Park. Monies to supplement the other budgets, C.I. Fund II, III and IV, have been accumulating here for several years as well. Total funds available are $2,975,814.

In a fifth budget, the Community Development Block Grant Fund, $519,437 will be spent this year: on the reconstruction of Centerway, $384,437, and Edmonston Road, $75,000, and the engineering costs of improvements to the Roosevelt Center parking lots, $60,000. Next year's tentative expenditures are reconstruction of Parkway, $60,000, and more engineering and design work on the parking lots at the Center, $65,000.

According to Brennan, "The Persian Gulf situation is vastly misunderstood in a cultural and historical context by the West. That . . . is a cause for great aggravation and embarrassment to the Arab communities in the Middle East."

Brennan has taught at Chongqing University in China and at the University of Tehran, Iran, and has lectured widely on topics ranging from cross cultural orientation for Americans travelling and working abroad and American business methods for Japanese, Korean, Iranian, and Arab businessmen. JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again!

A while ago I talked about the oxygen sensor, located in the exhaust system with one or two wires coming from it and resembling a spark plug. Ah, now you remember. Well this past week we had a vehicle with a drivability complaint and a mileage loss complaint. The engine was completely tuned up around two weeks ago with all new ignition components, but the condition actually worsened because the owner performed the tune up himself. We didn't know the validity of the job performed; after a road test and a visual we got the feeling of how badly this vehicle was performing. The actual tune up was pretty much in line and was not a factor on how the engine was performing at this time. While performing a singular emission component check with a digital volt and ohm meter, we eliminated most of the trouble and routine checks. The next test was the oxygen sensor test. At this point we felt that could be a cause but nothing out of the ordinary. Wow it seemed like the oxygen sensor was on vacation at the time we tested it for voltage. No wonder the engine was running terribly. We ordered one up and popped it in and retested the circuits. Now things are happening. The power increased, the stumble was gone, and probably the mileage came back. Only the next fill up will tell that. At that point we checked the mileage over 50 thousand 57 to be exact, and it was the original oxygen sensor. No preventive maintenance scheduling was ever done in this department. This is no good. This type of repair could have gotten out of hand very quickly, like a necessary component replacement. Vehicle owners buy all kinds of tuneup components that they think they need, not counting unscrupulous people who just sell replacement parts instead of fixing things. Well all's well in this department.

TILL NEXT TIME!!!!

THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE!!!!
